

Thinking of Leaving a Legacy to Uttlesford Citizens Advice ?

Only 20% of the UK population have made a will to clearly state how their financial affairs should be settled and who the beneficiaries will be. As well as providing for family and friends, a legacy (a monetary gift) from a will can provide vital support for charities working in the local community, such as Uttlesford Citizens Advice. A legacy, specifying the charity, can simply be built into either a new or an existing will with the aid of a solicitor. The legacy can be for a fixed amount of money or a percentage of your estate when all other tax and beneficiaries have been settled.

If necessary, we can give advice on a solicitor.

As an independent charity, Uttlesford Citizens Advice relies on donations from the public to continue its essential work helping disadvantaged and vulnerable people turn their lives around and restore their dignity and self-respect. By adding Uttlesford Citizens Advice to your will you will help to secure our future at a time when the demands on our services are growing.

Whether large or small, any gift will make a significant difference.
